

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a vehicle air conditioner, air having passed through a heat exchanger of an air conditioner unit is introduced to a plurality of wall outlet portions formed on walls of a compartment and blown off into the compartment. The air conditioner unit includes a plurality of temperature control means for independently controlling at least one of volume and temperature of the air flowing into the compartment through the respective wall outlet portions.